

When Martin Luther was a boy, his Father did very hard work. He wanted Martin to have a job that was different than his, so he sent Martin to school. Martin studied to become a lawyer. He read a lot of books, and learned.

